Q-biz Gives Business Email Users 5 times More Space

Quicksilver Internet has increased the size of its Q-Biz customer email boxes to a massive 50MB, five times that of most other ISPs.

Q-biz Mail Server users can now receive five times the volume of emails, without using up all of their mailbox size.

The increase in box size stops the embarrassment of having emails rejected and returned to sender. This is particularly relevant to small businesses as large emails are often the most important, for example tender documents or artwork files. Large email capacity also means trouble free email when you are not able to get to a computer. "Emails can accumulate if not downloaded regularly, which results in bounce-back and important emails being missed," explains Matthew Hobbs.

Quicksilver has partnered with Ubiquity to bring the new 'uSuite Online Tools' to small businesses.

Ubiquity specialises in developing software solutions that streamline business processes.

A key client of Ubiquity is the Auckland City Council, who recently implemented 'uTransact'. uTransact is an essential requirement for city and regional councils and large organisations that require the ability to accept online financial transactions. uTransact enabled the Council to accept payments for fines online through their website.

Like Quicksilver, Ubiquity was hand picked for the New Zealand Trade and Enterprise Fast Forward programme as being one of the high tech companies most likely to succeed.

Ubiquity's 'uSuite' Online Tools were chosen by Quicksilver because they give small businesses powerful, cost effective, user friendly website tools.

The uSuite tools include:
